Please give a reason for your answer:

(Student comments un-edited for spelling and grammar)

- Everyone should have the chance to learn that you don't have to say yes.
- Because it takes pressure off people and it makes sense
- Because then your telling people the actually have a choice and they don't have to feel pressured
- It gave lots of good reasons not to have sex before marriage without bringing religion into the mix, this means more people can relate to it, Loved the drama sketches, made it funny and interesting
- Because it shows that your not weird for saving sex for marriage, that it's actually a good thing
- It shows them/us the important of sex and it not just something that you do. I found it very interesting, thanks
- Because the presentation gave a lot of information but in a fun kind of way so people really take everything on board
- it was helpful and kinda guided you in the right direction and it was funny
- I think that all schools should have a presentation from Challenge Team UK because I thought they put on a really good performance and they helped me learn about saving sex for marriage. I learnt different things that I didn't know before

- Yes, it has affected the way I feel about sex
- They don't force their ideas on you the way other sex talkers do
- Because it was well presented and it was fun and interesting to watch. Also they were not forceful and were open to other opinions.
- It was a constructive use of time, actually made me think. Useful
- It gives you a different opinion to everyday views of sex.
- The presentation was effective, informative, entertaining and brought to light a new option about sex
- Really good presentation, helpful, factual, woop! go you guys.
- It gives a different option to mainstream society that people don't always hear about
- It gives you the chance to form your own opinion without being put under pressure.
- It gave a fresh perspective on a much misunderstood thing.
- It was thought provoking
- It shows good reasons and consequences I had not thought about
- It was way interesting
- The presentation was very good and really made me think about my options. Some people may be sceptical but it's good to be exposed to the opinions
- It educates about an important topic that will affect their whole lives
- It makes you think. Teenagers can relate easily
- People aren't necessarily told about these things at home and so they should be told at school
- It was very informative and changed my views!
- Gives students choice, and shows the reasons
- So younger people can know that they don't have to have sex because everyone else is.
- because it presents an alternative message in a very relevant way with humour
- because everybody should have the option to be able to save sex and understand why
- It will help teenagers make valid decisions in the future
- It contained lots of info about real life matters
- I do. Because I think it would show people that they should focus on love not lust, and I think it would improve people's views of themselves

Do you have any other comments?

- When the challenge team came they said a lot of answer I didn't know
- The presentation made a big difference to what I thought sex was and has encouraged me and many others to save sex for marriage
- It is good how you don't mind sharing personal experiences so people can relate to you
- I'm gay and I didn't get how it could help me, but it was really good.
- I'd score it as 100/10, honestly
- Very friendly team that you can relate to as they are young and funny
- The message is very challenging but thoughtful
- Very confident, friendly, funny, engaging and informative. Helpful
